

AFTER THE PARADE

DOROTHY GARLOCK...is a New York Times extended list bestselling author, "a gifted writer" (Chicago Sun-Times) who celebrates the indomitable American spirit and the triumphs of the caring heart. Now she vividly portrays the era after World War II, when men and women torn apart by years of combat had to rebuild marriages and lives... Rawlings, Oklahoma, 1945. Johnny Henry is coming...

Reader's Opinions

Reading the last book in a series before reading the others probably isn't the best way to go about things. But the fact is, I really didn't like this book. The two main characters are cowardly procrastinators to the highest degree. They just can't find the courage to confront and confess to each other. And it's not just for a...

Great sequel to the book With Heart which I just read. The red haired woman waits for her husband to come back from World War Two. When he arrives home, he doesn't want anything to do with her. She has to decide if she lives in town or gets a divorce and moves away.
